Since 2011, BERING has been a partner of the world's only conservation organisation which exclusively supports polar bears. Polar Bears International is dedicated to young bear families: In Alaska and Norway, research projects are now in progress to help protect the mothers and their offspring. BERING supports PBI's Maternal Den Project with its limited-edition BERING charity watch: For every charity watch sold, BERING donates 15 US dollars to the conservation organisation "Polar Bears International".

KEY FACTS ABOUT THE PROJECT

The Maternal Den Project will be an important continuation of efforts to document key aspects of polar bear denning behaviour, including when polar bear mothers and cubs emerge from their dens, how long families remain at den sites before travelling to the sea ice, and how sensitive they are to disturbances. Data collected over multiple years will better inform managers and policy makers and help them establish the best possible guidelines for ensuring the welfare of denning bears while also providing access to other resources.

WHY IS THE MATERNAL DEN PROJECT SO IMPORTANT?

Scientists need to understand the impact of human disturbance on denning polar bears, as human activity is expanding across the Arctic due to the melting Arctic sea ice. This will allow the management to protect crucial areas where denning occurs.

"BERING Time has demonstrated an amazing commitment in helping to protect the polar bear denning habitat," said Krista Wright, PBI's executive director. "We're grateful for their generous support."
